THE CONFERENCE

World-wide there is increasing focus on making buildings more sustainable, in social, economic and environmental terms. With populations migrating to cities, growth in the next three decades in SE Asia and elsewhere will be towards the creation of mega-cities. Buildings will need to be responsive to human needs, yet reduce their environmental loadings.

This regional conference is the 7th in the series of events organised in Asia Pacific. It is intended to bring together international speakers to meet and discuss innovation and integrated approaches to improve the overall quality of buildings, whilst reducing environmental impacts.

The event should be of interest to all professional persons involved in the design, commissioning, management and operation of buildings of all types, and who are concerned about health, comfort and productivity in facilities, and the energy and other resources required to maintain buildings. For more up-to-date information, please visit our website: <http://www.ashrae.org.hk/apc2003>.

THEMES

Innovation: papers describing innovative techniques and systems which contribute to more sustainable buildings, particularly those located in densely populated urban environments.

Integration: papers discussing and describing approaches that can provide for better integration of buildings and systems with the needs of users, so that buildings can become more robust and sustainable over their life cycle.

The organisers welcome papers which contribute to innovative and/or integrated design, commissioning, operation and refurbishment of buildings, including but not limited to:

- Building façade design and treatment;
- HVAC systems design and upgrade;
- Ventilation for safety, health, comfort and efficiency;
- Indoor Air Quality;
- Air flow thermal modelling & simulation;
- Building diagnostics;
- Renewable energy applications and integration, etc.
